

RAYNER TAKES AN EXCEPTION

Maryland's Senator Calls Roosevelt To The Mat For Usurpation Of His Power.

CITES MANY INSTANCES IN SPEECH

His Talk Lacks Bitterness But Brings Forth Many Debatable Questions For Consideration Of The Senate.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Disclaiming any intention of "assailing" President Roosevelt, and professing for him profound personal esteem, Senator Rayner of Maryland today addressed the senate at considerable length in critical review of what he termed the President's usurpation of governmental functions not conferred on him by the constitution.

He first alluded to the recent speech of Secretary Root in which was described the gradual enlargement of federal power at the expense of the states. "I regard this doctrine," said Mr. Rayner, "thus announced, adhered to and emphasized as a most dangerous and insidious attack on the institutions of the country." He said that because these doctrines were being constantly illustrated in the administration of the government, they must be taken, as they were intended to be taken, as manifesting the purpose of the present administration to carry this new doctrine of constitutional construction into execution whenever the opportunity or emergency may arise for its exercise.

Before reviewing the specific actions of the President which met his criticism, Mr. Rayner remarked, "The President is laboring under the honest impression that he is responsible to the country for the legislation of congress."

The first instance of "conflict" between the executive and legislative functions, Mr. Rayner said, was in the Santo Domingo affair, in which he said "the President had evidently made his own treaty." Without discussing whether the treaty was right, he said, "the charge that I make is that he has accomplished this in violation of the constitution. The treaty has been practically carried into effect without consulting the senate." The same means, he said, might be employed for the collections of debts from any Central and South American republic.

Mr. Rayner turned his attention to the judiciary, announcing his belief that this branch of the government ought to be entirely free from executive interference. "It is therefore my judgment," he added, "that the criticism by the President of Judge Humphrey with reference to his decision in the case known as the Meat Packers' case in the Illinois courts, was uncalled for and an invasion of his judicial prerogatives."

"We cannot tolerate such intrusion on the rights of the courts," continued Mr. Rayner, "The courts are not responsible to any president of the United States for their judgments. A judge would have been perfectly justified if he had declined to submit in silence to a rebuke of the executive. He could well, with dignified and calm defiance, have proclaimed from the bench, 'I am a sovereign here; you have no greater right to interfere with me than I have extrajudicially to denounce an act of yours as usurpation.'"

Mr. Rayner then pronounced his disapproval of the President for his "intrusion" upon the states, taking for example the note of the President "to Gov. Guild of Massachusetts in which the course of the governor was commended in refusing to interfere in the carrying out of the death sentence against Charles L. Tucker. 'I never knew a communication of this sort to be sent by a president to the governor of a state since the foundation of the republic,'" said Mr. Rayner, "and I deeply regret and deplore the occurrence. It would have been extremely good taste for Gov. Guild to have respectfully remitted this telegram to the President with a caution that he did not request the President's opinion in the case nor the sanction of his high station to the carrying out of the execution."

While admitting that no technical violation of any provision of the constitution was involved, Mr. Rayner contended that it was a practical announcement that the acts of state officials were subject to the approval or disapproval of the federal government.

The turbulent times in the senate attendant on the passage of the railroad bill were next alluded to by Mr. Rayner. "The President came into the game early," he began, and then added "We realize that no fight is thoroughly equipped upon this floor unless the President is in it. He longs for a fight as the hart panther after the Water brooks. It was a match to the finish between the senior senator from Rhode Island (Aldrich) and the President." The most wonderful exhibition of the President's power in congress, Mr. Rayner believed to have been at the time of legislating for the sea level canal. After describing this fight he remarked "It shows how the dominating spirit of the President can ride the whirlwind when he has made up his mind to legislate, and how in absolute defiance of the laws of nature he can produce a senatorial vacuum beneath the sweep of his mighty genius."

The Schley case was the next topic reviewed by Mr. Rayner, who went into the subject at considerable length, particularly with reference to the President's action in the matter. He predicted that the Schley case would not be reopened just as a similar case had recently been in another land. "Admiral Schley shall be heard," he announced, "living or dead." His cause shall be heard, I have never known an injustice of this sort to have been done that the occasion did not arise to redress it."

The result of the President's construction of his prerogatives, Mr. Rayner said, had raised a new school of scribes who had commenced to edit a revised edition of the constitution called "The unwritten constitution." The President is the prophet of this new creed, the Messiah of this strange reorganization. "But," he added "one thing he has no right to do, and that is to use the vast public patronage at his disposal to compel obedience to his views. Another thing he has no right to do, and that is to make compacts with the speaker of the house of representatives or its committees, to accomplish the legislation that he desires, or prevent legislation. And still another thing he has no right at any time to suggest any measure he may deem proper or necessary, to interfere with legislation and to force congress either to adopt his recommendations, or if it rejects them to bring about a breach between the legislative and executive departments that is detrimental to the best interests of the country; that constitutes an assumption of dictatorial power which the people of this republic, in the course of time will not submit to, I care not how great the achievement or how much it may conduce to their progress and welfare, or what benefit, advantage, or prosperity we may derive from its accomplishment."

In concluding Mr. Rayner said: "I believe that if the democratic party would take up as its battle cry the reserved rights of the states, and the inviolable constitutional distinction of the legislative, the judicial and the executive departments, that we could rally around the doctrine of the intelligent suffrages of our countrymen."

NORTH DAKOTA LINES LOST HIS EYE AND REPORTED AS CLEAR

COURT EXONERATES OFFICER OF CHARGE

Private Dowd is Also Cleared of the Charge of Murder of William Crowley.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 31.—The jury in the case of Lieut. Ralph W. Drury and Private John Dowd, U. S. A., charged with the murder of William H. Crowley, a citizen, returned a verdict today of not guilty. This ends a conflict of two and a half years between the civil and military authorities. Lieutenant Ralph H. Drury, U. S. A., and Private John Dowd, were arraigned in court to stand trial for the killing of William H. Crowley. In September, 1904, Crowley was detected in the act of stealing some copper at the Allegheny arsenal. He was pursued by the soldiers and was shot and killed after he had got outside the arsenal grounds. The civil authorities claimed that the case came under their jurisdiction and that the two accused soldiers should be tried in the civil courts. The War department, however, denied the right of the civil authorities to interfere in the matter. The question has been argued in the courts here on several different occasions and the final result is that the contention of the civil authorities was upheld. Owing to the long delay in bringing the case to trial, three important witnesses are dead and several are missing.

27,000 ENGINEERS ARE TO BE GIVEN ADVANCED WAGES

Locomotive "Pilots" on All Western Roads, Including Janesville Men, to Work Under New Scale.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Chicago, Jan. 31.—One of the most notable of the many wage advances made by the railroads and other large corporations since the beginning of December will become effective tomorrow, when 27,000 engineers employed by western railroads will go to work under the new agreement providing for a general increase in wages and readjustment of hours. The agreement applies to practically all of the railroads west of Fort William, Canada, St. Paul, Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans, to the Pacific coast and south to the Mexican border. The advance benefits all engineers, whether in the freight or passenger service or employed in the switch yards. The agreement is a notable victory for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which is one of the largest and strongest and at the same time one of the most conservative of the railway brotherhoods.

FORMER JANESVILLE WOMAN WAS BURNED

Mrs. George Brink of Evansville is Severely Injured in Gasoline Explosion.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Evansville, Wis., Jan. 31.—Mrs. George Brink, who formerly resided in Janesville, was severely burned this morning by an explosion of gasoline and her condition this afternoon is very serious. Mrs. Brink and her son Stanley live together and this morning early Mrs. Brink started to light the kitchen fire. As it did not burn properly she went to the kerosene can and in the darkness secured the gasoline one and as soon as she poured it on the flames it exploded, scattering the flames everywhere. Her dress caught fire as did the furniture in the room and she ran screaming to the front porch, the flames being fanned into fury by the breeze created. Neighbors heard her cries for help and succeeded in putting out the flames but not before they had completely scorched her from head to foot. Her right hand and arm are very severely burned and it is feared she inhaled some of the fumes. Dr. Spencer was called and all that was possible was done to alleviate her suffering. Her son Stanley was awakened by the cries and came to his mother's rescue. The fire in the house was quickly put out by Stanley aided by neighbors. How seriously Mrs. Brink is injured will not be known for twenty-four or forty-eight hours.

BOTH HOUSES GET BUSY WITH NEW LAWS AND HOW TO APPROPRIATE MONEY

Needs Of The University Are Made Public This Morning By Grist Of Bills.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—The demands by the university for a liberal appropriation came into the legislature in bills today. By Assemblyman Cleary to appropriate $200,000 for three years for buildings and improvements, and $50,000 for four years for a woman's building. By Fred Smith to appropriation $15,000 for a university extension correspondence school department. By Ledvina to abolish tuition charged to students of the law school. Ledvina is a law student himself, but the university authorities are opposed to his bill.

In the Senate, Senator Browne introduced bills for spring shooting, and to provide residence district option of saloons. Senator Owen proposes to tax mortgages and destroy the court standing of any mortgage that escapes taxation. Senator Martin introduced a bill to authorize the state board of control to grant conditional pardons or paroles, but not to life terms, or second offenders or to those prisoners who have not served at least half of their terms.

EPIDEMIC OF "UNWRITTEN LAW" CASES IN THE EAST

Three Murders Near Washington, D. C., Within A Little Over Month--Details Of The Latest.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—The murder of Hubert Posey last week at La Plata, Md., has added another to the list of similar tragedies, all involving the so-called "unwritten law," that have stirred this section of the country recently. Within a little over a month there have been three such murders in Washington and vicinity, beginning with the killing of former Senator Brown of Utah by Annie M. Bradley, because he would not marry her. Shortly after the Brown murder came the Byswater tragedy in Virginia, in which a young man of high social standing was shot to death by the brothers of the young girl whom he was declared to have wronged and whom he attempted to desert a few hours after he had been forced into marriage at the point of a pistol.

In the Hubert Posey killing, the latest to be added to the list, the alleged avengers were the mother and brother of the wronged girl. The mother, Mrs. Mollie Bowie, and her son, Henry Bowie, are now in jail, each attempting to shoulder all the blame and to exonerate the other.

Young Posey was met on the road on his return from work by Mrs. Bowie and her son. Mrs. Bowie was seen with a revolver in her hand and her son was seen to have a shotgun. Hubert Posey, according to the testimony of eye witnesses, did not exhibit any signs of fright, apparently not thinking the woman would shoot. Companions who were with Posey left him talking with the woman and her son and passed on down the road. Clayton Posey, brother of the victim, came up in time to join in the argument, but left before the shooting. Mother and son upbraided Posey for not carrying out his promise to marry "Sis" Bowie on Thanksgiving night. The young man attempted to walk away but had gone but a short distance when he was fired upon by both Mrs. Bowie and her son. He was found dead a short time later behind an old house where he had crawled after being shot.

It is the belief of persons familiar with the case that Hubert Posey had promised to marry "Sis" Bowie; and that he actually paid for the license, but experienced a change of mind after he had discussed his prospective marriage with his parents. Henry Bowie is known to have worried much over his sister's condition and had several times made threats against Posey. The latter knew of the feelings the Bowies had toward him and he had been advised to leave the county. Messages had been conveyed to him which gave him notice that he might expect just what happened. Some of his fellow workmen discussed his troubles and endeavored to persuade him to leave the community, telling him he would surely be killed if he remained, but he declined to heed the advice.

DROPPED THREE OF JURORS AT OPENING OF THE COURT

Their Places, However, Filled, And Ten Men Now Wait The Other Two.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Jan. 31.—As a result of the conference between the attorneys in the Thaw case and Justice Fitzgerald it was announced that two of the present jurors, David S. Walker and Louis Hass, were excused from further service. No reason is assigned and the two men mentioned were discharged from the jury. This is the second pair of jurors who have been released since the trial opened. It is thought in the case of Walker that his acquaintance with White, Thaw and Truxton Beale had much to do with his being dropped. This left three vacancies on the jury, two of which were soon filled by the acceptance of Oscar Pink, a grain salesman, aged forty-six, and Wilbur F. Steele, aged sixty, a prominent manufacturer of gas plants. At two o'clock there is still one juror missing, but it is probable he will be chosen before the afternoon is over and District Attorney Jerome will begin his statements of the case. The interest in the trial continues unabated. A third panel of a hundred veniremen was called this morning.

Juror No. 11 has been excused. His name was Henry I. Kleinberger. During the recess another conference between the attorneys and Judge Fitzgerald was had and it was reported Jerome wished to have another juror excused, but when the court reconvened it was evident the defense had thwarted his plan.

Arthur Conan Doyle.

Dr. A. Conan Doyle, the literary creature of Sherlock Holmes, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1859, and came of a line of artists. He started his schooling at Stonyhurst, in Lancashire, England, and later studied in Germany. He completed his education by graduating in medicine from the University of Edinburgh. He wrote his first published story in 1878, when he was just 19 years old. His first book was called "A Study in Scarlet" and he sold it outright for $125. His greatest work was the Sherlock Holmes series. Some of his successes have been "The Sign of the Cross," "The White Company," "The Sign of the Four" in 1890, "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" in 1891, "The Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes" in 1893, "The Hound of the Baskervilles" in 1902.

Before The Footlights.

All lovers of good wholesome entertainment should visit the Myers theatre Saturday, Feb. 2, matinee and evening, and witness the Brothers Byrne in their screamingly funny play the new "Eight Bells," an entirely original production of spectacular pantomime comedy, written by John F. Byrne. He is also the inventor of the mechanical devices, pantomime tricks, etc., and never claimed any other motive than to make an addition to the gaiety of the nation, and he has succeeded beyond all shadow of a doubt. The new "Eight Bells" is a compound of farce comedy, pantomime and spectacle, and with the extraordinary physical agility of the Brothers Byrne it has swung itself in the first rank of popular attractions. The effects produced are the most mystical and laughable ever conceived and keeps the Byrnes and their associates continually on the go showing no signs of flagging, and allowing the action of the play to proceed with a briskness that is refreshing in a stage production. The entire Byrne family, four in number appear in the new "Eight Bells" and they are supported by a company of clever pantomimists and comedians. In fact nothing has been left undone to make this Byrne production a leader in its class.

Miss Florence Gale will be seen in a beautiful scenic revival of "Taming of the Shrew" at the Myers theatre.

Catarrhal Gastritis

"For two years, I was in a very bad condition. I was treated by a number of eminent physicians for chronic catarrhal gastritis and dilatation of the stomach, and obtained no relief. I grew gradually worse, my breathing was so difficult at times that I thought I would die. My heart was in very bad condition from poor circulation and pressure of the dilated stomach. I decided it was only a matter of a very short time with me. I was advised to try Dr. Miles' Nerve and Heart Cure, and before I had finished taking one bottle of the medicine I felt like a new being. I took eight bottles of the medicine, and am entirely cured, for a matter of about $8.00 in the face of two hundreds spent in the two years before without relief."

A. D. SLACK, Master Mechanic of the I. & G. N. R. R., St. Antonio, Texas.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Heart Cure is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe! Angels smile at and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of childbirth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed this great crisis in perfect safety and without pain.

POINTED QUESTIONS

The coming spring campaign promises to be full of interest and an exciting contest is expected. Thus far four candidates have appeared on the political horizon bounded by the republican fences with more with their heads above the top boards. In the democratic pastures two are known to seek the honor, while others have itchings. That the fight promises to be a merry one, a battle royal in which many pointed questions and strong statements will be used to influence the voter, is now anticipated. Without making any recommendations as to personalities of the candidates the Gazette suggests that each voter weigh carefully the calibre of the candidate, and then vote for the best man.

FIFTY-SEVEN VARIETIES

Just like the famous "Fifty-seven Varieties" of advertising fame, the state legislature got busy yesterday and placed this number of embryo laws upon the business sheets of the state legislature for consideration. It was a busy day, but on looking over the list of proposed laws one is surprised to find that few of them could be called freak legislation. Out of the whole number, fifty-seven, it is safe to say that not one-third will be passed, but none of them would work any great radical wrongs if they were and some of them would benefit at least certain localities.

BOOM THE CITY

Now is the time for every good citizen to begin his Nineteen-seven crusade as a boomer. Boom Janesville every opportunity you get. Do not be a knocker; be a boomer. Say something good about your fellow citizens, about the old town and get other people talking. Good, systematic booming will help any community and Janesville gives the booster plenty to talk about.

CARNATIONS AND PRIMROSES

In England the Primrose league is a continuing organization because it stands for something more than the memory of an individual—Lord Beaconsfield. Indeed, a new generation has grown up to whom Disraeli is only a name, says the Chicago Chronicle.

Nevertheless the primrose continues to be the emblem of imperialism and terrorism. It is a floral symbol of a party, like the roses of York and Lancaster.

It is to be doubted whether the dedication of the carnation to the memory of the late President McKinley will result in perpetuating a fashion which was evidently suggested by the Primrose league. The factors in the two things are essentially different.

President McKinley was personally popular, but he did not stand for any great national policy as against some other great national policy. His name was associated with the protective tariff policy, but he did not originate that policy nor was he its most influential proponent. He was not the champion of an extreme faction nor was he opposed by an antagonist like Gladstone. He was the servant of his party rather than its ruler.

Consequently it is as a man of amiable characteristics—kind, affable and adaptable—rather than as a dominant statesman that the wearers of the carnation remember President McKinley. It is personal tribute to him, and as his personality grows less familiar with the lapse of years the observation of carnation day will probably fall into disuse.

Certainly there is little room for the expectation held by some wearers of the carnation that the Primrose league will have an influential American contemporary of its type on this side of the ocean. The conditions are altogether different.

The Shea case is to be tried over again in Chicago. The citizens who were not called on the first venire should prepare for a long absence from their business. The sheriff will soon be around for them.

The disgusting features of the Harry Thaw trial have thus far not developed. All the reporters appear to be able to write about thus far is how the distasteful side of the case appear in court.

Few Know They Need It.

Chicago Chronicle: Chancellor James R. Day was once advising a young undergraduate of Syracuse university to cultivate tact. "But, alas," he said, "I fear that advice on such a subject must always be wasted. On tact the last word was spoken by Barbed A'ureville when he said: 'If tact could be bought only those already possessed of it would want to buy it."

So Goodbye, Swettenham! Chicago Tribune: If Gov. Swettenham has withdrawn his letter he wrote to Admiral Dribbs and apologized for it, as rumored, the incident may be allowed to drop with a dull thud. Other matters are pressing on the news columns now.

Bound to Be Noticed. Fond du Lac Commonwealth: And now it has been discovered that Appleton storekeepers are in the habit of selling imitation chocolate creams filled with whisky and wine. It really seems as if Appleton people will do most anything, in order to get a front page position in the Chicago news papers.

After the Currents, Doubtless. Exchange Squibs: Becoming a nuisance in Ft. Atkinson. An ordinance was enacted some time ago by the city council for their protection, but they have become such a pest that steps are being taken to exterminate them. They have caused much damage to the telephone and electric wires by knowing the insulators.

Chicago Not Easily Shocked. Oshkosh Northwestern: In spite of all the fuss raised over the production of the opera "Salome" at New York, and the efforts made in that city to have the play suppressed, it is stated no change will be made in the program to have "Salome" produced in Chicago. But of course it is to be expected that the people of Chicago can stomach some things that would nauseate even New York.

Socialists Grudgingly Praised. Chicago Chronicle: It is disagreeable to have to say anything complimentary about socialists, but it is impossible not to commend the socialists in the Wisconsin legislature who have taken up arms against legislative chaplains. They complain that the chaplain of the lower House lately took up twenty minutes of precious time in giving the Almighty his views concerning the legislation pending in the body. As the socialists are not alone in this matter, it is to be hoped that the chaplain will be abolished and the solons compelled to pray at home, where they can pray as long as they wish.

METEORIC CAREER OF GEORGE PERKINS

Brought into Prominence by His Forty-fifth Birthday, Which Passed with Little Notice.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New York, Jan. 31.—One of the most talked about financiers of today, George W. Perkins, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., was forty-five years old today, but he did not permit the anniversary to interfere with his regular routine work. It takes something more than a birthday to divert the attention of Mr. Perkins from business. Not even his indecent, for alleged, false statements in his most brilliant coup, the Russian bond transaction, by which he secured the reinstatement of the New York Life Insurance company in Germany, caused more than a ripple on the great sea of his business activities. Perhaps that is why he has risen by his own efforts from the humble position of office boy to managing partner in one of the world's greatest banking houses. Mr. Perkins is not a club man. His tastes are domestic and he spends most of his time out of office hours with his family in his beautiful Riverside home. His advice to young men wanting to get ahead in the world is: "Keep pegging away. Too many young men in this country don't want to work hard. They prefer to take things easy, stay up late at night and lie abed too long in the morning. They never can get ahead that way. Time and conditions may change, but the old rule remains the same, that there is no success without keeping overlastingly at it."

"Don't Imagine," says an auctioneer, "that you can get any real bargains at a pawnshop sale. The pawnbroker knows just what people think about his stock, many of them having learned from experience that he will pay next to nothing on the best quality of jewelry and silverware, watches, etc., and they thus get it into their heads that all the articles sold at auction are genuine goods. But there's where they make a big mistake. The pawnbroker seldom sells any pledged articles at these auction sales. He uses them simply for a 'blind.' Articles taken in pawn are invariably sold at private sale."—New York American.

A Glimpse of Carlyle. One day Carlyle suddenly stopped at a street crossing and, stooping, picked up something out of the mud, even at the risk of being knocked down and run over by passing vehicles. With his bare hands he gently rubbed the mud from it. He then took it to the pavement and laid it down on a clean spot on the curbstone. "That," said the old man in a tone of tenderness he rarely used, "is only a crust of bread. Yet I was taught by my mother never to waste anything—above all, bread, more precious than gold. I am sure that the little sparrows or a hungry dog will get nourishment from this bit of bread."

The Kingfisher. Many and curious are the legends of the kingfisher. One of these is to the effect that the bird was originally a plain gray in color, but upon being let loose from the ark flew toward the setting sun and had its back stained blue by the sky and its lower plumage scorched by the sun to gorgeous hues. The dried body of the kingfisher was once used as a charm against thunderbolts and moths, and it was hung up so that it might point with its bill to the wind's quarter.

Old Lady's Pious Hope. "There are some people who believe that the whole human race will be saved," said an old lady, "but for my part, I hope for better things."—Success Magazine.

JOHN LAWLER DIED LATE IN AFTERNOON

Father of Mrs. John W. Hogan Was a Veteran of Civil War and Member of W. H. Sargent Post.

John Lawler, for many years a highly respected resident of Janesville, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John W. Hogan, 207 South Franklin street, at half-past three o'clock yesterday afternoon. ARE HEIRS TO A FRISCO ESTATE

THREE JANESVILLE PEOPLE ARE INTERESTED IN SETTLEMENT.

TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND

Heirs of Philip Maher, Who Was Killed There a Year Ago, Take Steps to Recover Property.

Three Janesville residents, Mrs. L. B. Caniff, Mrs. William McLaughlin and Nicholas Maher, will soon inherit their share of a two-hundred-thousand-dollar estate that is being held in the San Francisco courts for the heirs of the late Philip Maher, who was killed in Frisco January 10 of last year. There are three other heirs to the estate, a brother living in Iowa and a niece and nephew living in Boston named Maher and Mrs. William Kelly.

A year ago a Chicago paper published an account of the death of Philip Maher, a wealthy San Francisco real estate man, and it was read by his relatives in Janesville. The matter was placed in the hands of Attorney J. T. Cunningham and shortly afterwards occurred the San Francisco quake which has hindered matters considerably. This morning, however, Mr. Cunningham received the following telegram from H. C. Schmitzer, who is looking after matters in Frisco: "Wire full names and exact relationship of your clients to decedent Maher."

The last heard of Philip Maher by his Janesville residents was twelve years ago when he was known to be in the west somewhere. He was born in Ireland, but had lived in this country for many years, spending most of his time in the west. The remainder of the heirs have been communicated with and steps will be taken to have the estate probated and settled at once. This business will probably take Mr. Cunningham to San Francisco shortly.

One feature of the case which makes it interesting is the claim made since the earthquake by another Frisco contractor that Maher made a will and San Francisco parties are making a search for the papers in the case, although it is not probable that it will have any effect upon the settlement of the estate. Philip Maher was a bachelor and the five nephews and nieces and one brother are the only heirs now living. The following is a copy of the article, under a San Francisco dateline, that led to the discovery of Maher's death:

"San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 12.—The death of Philip Maher, the aged real estate dealer who was killed Thursday night as a result of a fall from a trestle at Army and Dolores streets, has brought to light the fact that the man, although considered poor by his neighbors on Army street, was wealthy and possessed of property worth at least $200,000.

"Public Administrator M. J. Hyne has taken charge of Maher's effects. The public administrator learned yesterday that the man instead of being in indigent circumstances, had ample means and received a large monthly income from the rents of valuable improved property.

"Maher lived for years the life of a recluse in a small shanty at 2930 Army street. He avoided companionship and was looked upon as an eccentric character by the people of that vicinity. Maher seldom left his shanty in late years, and then only at stated periods when he went downtown. He was regarded as extremely close and spent little money on himself.

"When he was taken to the City and County hospital after being injured papers were found on his person which showed that he was the owner of some fine income property. He had many receipts for rent collected by a well-known real estate firm for his account and other papers of value. Believing that some of the man's wealth might be hidden about the premises where he lived, the public administrator yesterday caused a search to be made of the shanty and lot, and a further search will be made."

MAY NOT RETURN UNTIL FEBRUARY 25

Judge Grimm Concluded Work Here Today—A. A. Jackson's Illness Necessitated Postponement of Case.

The Town of Plymouth vs. the St. Paul Ry. Co. case was to have been argued in circuit court this morning but owing to the fact that A. A. Jackson, attorney for the defense, was slightly indisposed the hearing had to be postponed. Judge Grimm returned to Jefferson this noon. The February term in that county begins next Monday, Feb. 4, and he may not be back here again until the February term in Rock county opens on the 25th, though he hopes to be able to come the Monday preceding.

FACE POUNDED AND CUT IN FIST FIGHT

Dennis Courtney, Aged Fifty or More, Terribly Beaten by Man of Twenty-five.

In a fist fight at the Northwestern cinder pit shortly before six o'clock this morning Dennis Courtney, the night engine dispatcher's helper, sustained two long, deep gashes and numerous bruises about the left side of the face. It is alleged that Mr. Courtney's assailant was Andrew Peters, a laborer, and that the origin of the fracas was nothing that would provoke the average man. As Courtney is past fifty years of age and Peters is under twenty-five many railroad men are much angered today at the younger. They say his victim, who has been an employee of the company for many years, was one of the most agreeable and pleasant men in the service and believe it impossible that the fight was any fault of his. The matter is being investigated by the railway authorities and the one responsible for the affray will be dealt with summarily.

WADSWORTH RAPS THE PRESIDENT

VINDICATES HIS WORK ON THE MEAT INSPECTION BILL.

IS HEARTILY APPLAUDED

Roosevelt Taken to Task for Criticisms and Intimations—Two Senators Score Secretary Hitchcock.

Washington, Jan. 31.—In the house Wednesday Representative Wadsworth of New York, chairman of the committee on agriculture, took occasion to speak in vindication of himself and that committee for the work done last session in connection with the meat inspection bill, and in doing so evoked a pronounced demonstration of approval. The speech came at the completion of the agricultural appropriation bill.

When Mr. Wadsworth rose, asking the committee to revert to the section relating to the meat inspection, he said:

"Last June, when the meat inspection legislation was under consideration by congress, the chief executive of the nation saw fit, in a letter addressed to the chairman of the committee on agriculture of the house of representatives, in unmeasured terms, and in language conveying a threat, and in words intimating a doubt as to the sincerity and honesty of purpose of the members of that committee, to condemn the meat inspection bill reported by the committee on agriculture for the consideration of the house.

Same Bill Was Approved.

"As the house well knows, the very bill condemned so severely by the executive in his letter to the chairman of the committee on agriculture, with few amendments in its verbiage, amendments which in no way—and I measure my words—increased its effectiveness, was signed by him, on June 30, 1906, and is now the law of the land. In further justice to, and in vindication of the committee on agriculture of the house of representatives, and in view of all the circumstances and the use that has been made of the executive's letter, I may be permitted to say, in justice to, and in vindication of myself, I offer the testimony of the secretary of agriculture, as given by Dr. Melvin of the bureau of animal industry, the bureau having in charge the execution of the law."

He read from the testimony of Dr. Melvin, who is chief of the bureau, who testified to the efficiency of the measure.

His Promise Fulfilled.

Mr. Wadsworth closed as follows: "So that, after seven months of study of its provisions, during which time many questions arose and had to be settled, and many rules and regulations promulgated, and after four months of active enforcement of the bill, the secretary of agriculture has not found it necessary to suggest or recommend a single amendment to make it more effective—not one. So far at least, the bill has been found to be an honest one, and an effective one, just as I promised you gentlemen last June on behalf of the committee on agriculture, when without reading it you passed it under suspension of the rules, it would be. That is all."

The house completed the agricultural appropriation bill after adopting sundry amendments.

The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was sent to conference, the managers on the part of the house being Messrs. Cousins of Iowa, C. B. Landis of Indiana and Howard of Georgia.

The river and harbor appropriation bill, carrying $84,000,000 in round numbers, was taken up, no time being agreed upon for the close of general debate.

Vote on Smoot Feb. 20.

Besides fixing Feb. 20 as the day to vote on the declaration that Senator Reed Smoot of Utah is not entitled to his seat, passing a bill appropriating $2,000,000 to confine the Colorado river to its banks and another placing the management of the Panama railway under the isthmian canal commission, the senate listened to an extended speech by Senator Carter of Montana in criticism of the secretary of the interior, and another by Senator Heyburn to the same end. The recent order of the secretary preventing the issuance of patents to the public lands until after an examination on the ground by a special agent was the subject of the criticism, and many senators from western states, by casual interruptions, showed their approval of the sentiments expressed.

Santa Fe Bond Issue Voted.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 31.—By almost unanimous consent the stockholders of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway company here Wednesday voted in favor of the issuance of $98,000,000 in bonds to secure money for improvements and the extension of certain lines. Only $25,000,000 of these bonds are to be put on the market at the present time.

Engine Explodes, Two Killed.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 31.—A Pennsylvania railroad engine pulling a freight exploded 12 miles west of here Wednesday, killing two men, seriously injuring another and practically demolishing the entire train of 20 empty stock cars.

Few Paupers in Japan.

It is estimated that there are less than 10,000 paupers in the Japanese empire, with its population of 137,000,000.

CANAL CONTRACT NOT LET

NEITHER OLIVER'S BID NOR ANY OTHER MAY BE ACCEPTED.

Secretary Leeb Says Work May Yet Be Done by Government, Using Contractors as Agents.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The following statement was made public at the White House Wednesday night by Secretary Leeb:

"Reports in the papers seem to indicate a belief that the canal contract has been conditionally awarded to Mr. Oliver. This is not so. No decision has been made even that the contract will be awarded to any of the bidders. Mr. Oliver's bid was so hopelessly defective that it could not be even considered, and time was given him to complete it in shape that will enable it to receive consideration. If it is put into such shape it will be considered, together with the bid already made by the Gillespie-McArthur combination, which may itself be altered; and then whichever bid, after the most careful examination, seems most advantageous may be taken, or both bids rejected and the canal be constructed under the direct supervision of the government. In such case the government would wherever it chose use contractors simply as agents.

"The real object in contracting the work is to have assembled a large number of the best specialists in each class of work, and the prime consideration will be the ability and fitness shown in a variety of directions by the men making the bid. The president and the commission would not even consider a bid of merely one or two men. The work is already going well. Over half a million cubic yards were taken out of the Culobra cut in January, and the amount being taken out is steadily increasing."

COAST MEN ARE PACIFIED.

Conference at White House on Japanese School Question.

Washington, Jan. 31.—After two hours' conference at the White House Wednesday night regarding the Japanese question on the Pacific coast, the California delegation in congress authorized the following statement:

"The California delegation had a very full and harmonious discussion with the president, the secretary of state and the secretary of the navy on the serious questions relating to the Japanese on the Pacific coast. The character of the discussion leads us to feel confident that a solution will be reached satisfactory to all concerned.

"The result of the meeting is that the delegation has telegraphed to the president of the San Francisco board of education and the superintendent of schools to come to Washington at once for a conference with the president and secretary of state."

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 31.—Governor Gillette Wednesday received a telegram from Washington signed by the California delegation urging him to ask the legislature to defer all action on Japanese matters. He has prepared a formal message to the legislature which will be read to both houses Thursday morning.

San Francisco, Jan. 31.—School Directors Walsh and Roncoviari will leave for Washington Thursday night in response to President Roosevelt's invitation. They declare that they are determined not to accept any compromise in the matter of Japanese attending public schools other than those set aside for orientals.

He wandered around in the pasture for three days before a searching party found him. He was without food and water during all that time. He was 35 miles from home when found.—Exchange.

Tale-Bearing.

Nobody loves a telltale, and most of us were brought up in the belief that it is dishonorable to turn informer. Still, there is a great and obvious difference between tale-bearing and testifying against a criminal, even if the criminal happens to be a comrade or associate. It is held to be shameful to turn against a friend, but it is not dishonorable to deliver a criminal to punishment. The distinction is worth emphasizing.—Chicago Chronicle.

MOB IN PITTSBURG FIGHTS NEGROES

ONE COLORED MAN NARROWLY ESCAPES LYNCHING.

HIS FRIENDS ATTACKED

Wild Chase Through Business District Is Stopped Finally by the Police and Firemen.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 31.—C. A. Jackson, a negro, bleeding from many wounds on the head, is locked up in the central police station, following an exciting and almost successful attempt to lynch him Wednesday night by a crowd of several hundred persons on Fifth avenue, between Wood and Market streets, in the heart of the business district.

A number of unknown negroes who tried to protect Jackson were roughly used by the mob and quickly disappeared.

Several women who were caught in the crush had to be taken to their homes, suffering from nervous shock.

Had Row With Newsboy.

A newsboy asked the negro to buy a paper. Jackson shoved him roughly into the street. The boy threw a stone that struck Jackson on the head. The negro jumped to the street and began choking the boy. The street was thronged with men, the incident occurring about seven o'clock, when many were waiting for street cars to go to their homes. In a moment several men caught the negro and began beating him.

Someone cried, "Lynch the nigger!" and hundreds of men and boys rushed upon Jackson. Canes, stones, rolled-up newspapers, and closed fists were the chief weapons used by the mob. Apparently, every white man on Fifth avenue wanted to strike the negro.

Other Negroes Roughly Used.

Backed up against a building, Jackson trembling with fear, shielded his face with his arms while the crowd beat him and tore his clothes. About this time several other negroes took in the situation and endeavored to protect Jackson. Immediately there were cries of "Lynch them!" and "Kill the niggers!"

The mob then turned its attention to Jackson's protectors and soon there were several rough-and-tumble battles. The mob, crying all the while, "Kill all the negroes," caught several other negroes and proceeded to bump their heads against the stone buildings.

Jackson, bleeding, and his clothes almost torn off, was temporarily forgotten and he ran down Fifth avenue. Somebody cried, "The nigger is escaping," and several hundred persons took up the chase. Down Fifth avenue to Liberty avenue, two blocks away, and then down Liberty avenue to Fifth street, the chase continued and every minute new members joined the crowd.

Mob Fights the Police.

Just below Fifth street Jackson ran into the arms of several policemen. The officers took him into an alley and attempted to hold back the crowd with their night sticks. They were fast losing ground, however, when a large force of city firemen from a nearby engine house came to their aid. The police and firemen guarded the entrance to the alley until the patrol wagon, loaded with officers, responded to a riot call.

Within a few minutes the crowd was scattered by the free application of night sticks and Jackson was locked up.

CHARLES L. STEVENS IS DEAD.

Grand Master of Michigan Masons Falls Lifeless on Street.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 31.—Charles L. Stevens, grand master of the Michigan grand lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, dropped dead of heart disease Wednesday night on High street west, while walking toward his home at 457 Second avenue. He was 50 years of age and is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. McHarg, of Portland, Ore., whose husband is secretary of the pensions committee of the United States senate. The funeral, which will probably take place next Sunday, will be conducted by the Michigan grand lodge.

Everybody Prefers Electric Light

Because of its convenience and other advantages Everybody would use it if they realized its economy as well. You seldom hear of an electric light user going back to any other form of illumination. Isn't that pretty good proof of its superiority?

By using the Tantalum Lamp you can reduce your current bill about 30 per cent. Let us explain further.

MUCH FREIGHT STALLED

TWO THOUSAND LOADED CARS WAITING AT MINNEAPOLIS.

Others Tied Up Along the Railways—Christmas Goods and Supplies Make Up the Merchandise.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 31.—Two thousand cars of freight in the hands of the Great Northern railroad are stalled in Minneapolis or at the Minnesota transfer waiting for lines to be cleared and for engines to move them. Elevator firms interested in the movement of cars, who have been doing some quiet investigating to see where all the cars are and what is actually doing, say that 2,000 is a safe estimate of the number of stalled cars in and about the city. All are loaded with merchandise consigned to points all over the northwest.

In the delayed cars are thousands of dollars' worth of Christmas goods that have not arrived yet at their destination. Though the roads have not been receiving perishable goods for points in the northwest for some time, some of the delayed shipments are of this class.

Reports last week showed a large number of Northern Pacific cars tied up in the same manner. In addition are many other cars stalled at points all along the lines. It is charged that owing to the policy of moving only capacity loads when the lines were open, hundreds of cars were dropped off at intermediate points when breaks, bad weather and cold cut down the hauling capacity of engines. Those cars, it is said, were to have been gathered up later, but the blockade has made it impossible.

Children's Head Coverings.

In the orient the children, who are permitted to grow up nearly nude, have their heads swathed in bandages which serve as a protection from the ardent sun. On the same principle in some hot countries babies' caps are heavily embroidered, or trimmed with fur, or, as in Japan, incrustated with flowers, leaves and tinsel.

Bonnets for Brittany Babies.

The baby bonnets of Brittany are marvels of art. Some are trimmed with gold lace and pearls, and on the side often is a little sachet or cockade, wherein the devout mother places a bit of consecrated water. Boys' caps are ornamented with tassels and pom-poms.

THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON
NICHOLSON, THE JANSVILLE DAILY GAZETTE, JANSVILLE, OHIO

CHAPTER V.

A Red Tam-o'-Shanter.
I looked out on the bright October morning with a renewed sense of isolation. Trees crowded about my windows, many of them still wearing their festive colors, scarlet and brown and gold, with the bright green of some stubborn companion standing out here and there with startling vividness. I put on an old corduroy outfit and heavy shoes, ready for a tramp abroad and went below.

The great library seemed larger than ever when I beheld it in the morning light. I opened one of the French windows and stepped out on a stone terrace, where I gained a fair view of the exterior of the house, which proved to be a modified Tudor, with battlements and two towers. One of the latter was only half-finished, and to it and to other parts of the house the workmen's scaffolding still clung. Heaps of stone and piles of lumber were scattered about in great disorder. The house extended partly along the edge of a ravine, through which a slender creek ran toward the lake. The terrace, became a broad balcony immediately outside the library, and beneath it the water bubbled pleasantly around heavy stone pillars. Two pretty rustic bridges spanned the ravine, one near the front entrance, the other at the rear. My grandfather had projected his house on a generous plan, but buried as it was among the trees, it suffered the lack of perspective. However, on one side toward the lake was a fair meadow, broken by a water-tower, and just beyond the west dividing wall I saw a little chapel; and still farther, in the same direction, the outlines of the buildings of St. Agatha's were vaguely perceptible in another strip of woodland.

The thought of gentle nuns and schoolgirls as neighbors amused me. All I asked was that they should keep to their own side of the wall.

I heard behind me the careful step of Bates.

"Good morning, Mr. Glenarm. I trust you rested quite well, sir."

His figure was as austere, his tone as respectful and colorless as by night. The morning light gave him a pallid cast. He suffered my examination coolly enough; his eyes were, indeed, the best thing about him.

"You may breakfast when you like, sir,"—and thus admonished I went into the refectory.

A newspaper lay at my plate; it was the morning's issue of a Chicago daily. I was, then, not wholly out of the world, I reflected, scanning the headlines.

Bates had placed me so that I faced the windows, an attention to my comfort and safety that I appreciated. The broken pane told the tale of the shot that had so narrowly missed me the night before.

"I'll repair that to-day, sir," Bates remarked, seeing my eyes upon the window.

"You know that I'm to spend a year on this place; I assume that you are acquainted with the circumstances," I said, feeling it wise that we should understand each other.

"Quite so, Mr. Glenarm."

"I'm a student, you know, and all I want is to be let alone."

This I threw in to reassure myself rather than for his information. It was just as well, I reflected, to assert a little authority, even though the fellow undoubtedly represented Pickering and received orders from him.

"In a day or two, or as soon as I have got used to the place, I shall settle down to work in the library. You may give me breakfast at seven-thirty; luncheon at one-thirty and dinner at seven."

"Those were my late master's hours, sir."

DOCTORS MISTAKES

Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times when called on their family physicians, suffering as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from a disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes all kinds of potent pills. In reality, they are all one and the same thing, a disease known as "catarrh of the bladder." The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up the treatment until large bills are made. The patient gets no better. The disease is the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have cured them. The disease, therefore, have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known as half-cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly remaining in particular. For over-due "run-down," run-down, debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nerve tonic "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled, and is available in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuritis, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the nervous system. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

"Very well. And I'll eat anything you please, except mutton broth, meat pie and canned strawberries. Strawberries in tins, Bates, are not well calculated to lift the spirit of man."

"I quite agree with you, sir, if you will pardon my opinion."

"And the bills?"

"They are provided for by Mr. Pickering. He sends me an allowance for the household expenses."

"So you are to report to him, are you, as heretofore?"

"I blew out a match with which I had lighted a cigar and watched the smoking end intently."

"I believe that's the idea, sir."

"It is not pleasant to be under compulsion—to feel your freedom curtailed, to be conscious of espionage. I arose without a word and went into the hall."

"You may like to have the keys," said Bates, following me. "There's two for the gates in the outer wall and one for the St. Agatha's gate; they're marked, as you see. And here's the hall door key and the boat house key that you asked for last night."

"After an hour spent in unpacking I went out into the grounds. I thought it well to wire Pickering of my arrival, and I set out for Annandale to send him a telegram."

I found the gate through which we had entered the grounds the night before without difficulty, and started off in an amiable state of mind. My perplexity over the mysterious shot was passing away under the benign influences of blue sky and warm sunshine. A few farm folk passed me in the highway and saluted me in the fashion of the country, inspecting my knickerbockers at the same time with frank disapproval. When I reached the lake I gazed out upon its quiet waters with satisfaction. At the foot of Annandale's main street was a dock where several small steam craft and a number of catboats were being dismantled for the winter. As I passed a man approached the dock in a skiff, landed and tied his boat. He passed at a quick pace, then turned and eyed me with rustic directness.

"Good morning!" I said. "Any ducks about?"

He paused, nodded and fell into step with me.

"No—not enough to pay for the trouble."

"I'm sorry for that. I'd hoped to pick up a few."

"I guess you're a stranger in these parts," he remarked, eyeing me again. "My knickerbockers no doubt marking me as an alien."

"Quite so. My name is Glenarm, and I've just come."

"I thought you might be him. We've rather been expecting you here in the village. I'm John Morgan, caretaker of the resorters' houses up the lake."

"I suppose you all knew my grandfather hereabouts?"

"Well, yes; you might say as we did, or you might say as we didn't. He wasn't just the sort that you got next to in a hurry. He kept pretty much to himself. He built a wall there to keep us out, but he needn't have troubled himself. We're not the kind around here to meddle, and you may be sure the summer people never bothered him."

There was a tone of resentment in his voice, and I hastened to say:

"I'm sure you're mistaken about the purposes of that wall. My grandfather was a student of architecture. It was a hobby of his. The house and wall were in the line of his experiments, and to please his whims. I hope the people of the village won't hold any hard feelings against his memory or against me. Why, the labor there must have been a good thing for the people hereabouts."

"It ought to have been," said the man gruffly; "but that's where the trouble comes in. He brought a lot of queer fellows here under contract to work for him,—Italians, or Greeks, or some sort of foreigners. They built the wall, and he had 'em at work inside for half a year. He didn't even let 'em out for air; and when they finished his job he loaded 'em on to a train one day and hauled 'em away."

"That was quite like him, I'm sure," I said, remembering with amusement my grandfather's secretive ways.

"I guess he was a crank all right," said the man conclusively.

It was evident that he did not care to establish friendly relations with the resident of Glenarm. He was about 40, light, with a yellow beard and pale blue eyes. He was dressed roughly and wore a shabby soft hat.

"Well, I suppose I'll have to assume responsibility for him and his acts," I remarked, piqued by the fellow's surlyness.

We had reached the center of the village, and he left me abruptly, crossing the street to one of the shops. I continued on to the railway station, where I wrote and paid for my message. The station master inspected me carefully as I searched my pockets for change.

"You want your telegrams delivered at the house?" he asked.

"Yes, please," I answered, and he turned away to his desk of clicking instruments without looking at me again.

It seemed wise to establish relations with the postoffice, so I made myself known to the girl who sat at the delivery window.

"You already have a box," she advised me. "There's a boy carries the mail to your house; Mr. Bates hires him."

Bates had himself given me this information, but the girl seemed to find pleasure in imparting it with a certain severity. I then bought a cake of soap at the principal drug store and purchased a package of smoking tobacco, which I did not need, at a grocery.

News of my arrival had evidently reached the villagers; I was concealed enough to imagine that my presence was probably of interest to them; but the station master, the girl at the post-office and the clerks in the shops treated me with an unmistakable cold reserve. There was a certain evidence of the chill with which they visited me, as though a particular degree of frigidity had been agreed on in advance.

I shrugged my shoulders and turned toward Glenarm. My grandfather had left me a cheerful legacy of distrust among my neighbors, the result, probably, of importing foreign labor to work on his house. The surly Morgan had intimated as much; but it did not greatly matter. I had not come to Glenarm to cultivate the rustics, but to fulfill certain obligations laid down in my grandfather's will. I was, so to speak, on duty, and I much preferred that the villagers should let me alone. Comforting myself with these reflections I reached the wharf, where I saw Morgan sitting with his feet dangling over the water, smoking a pipe.

I nodded in his direction, but he feigned not to see me. A moment later he jumped into his boat and rowed out upon the lake.

When I returned to the house Bates was at work in the kitchen. This was a large square room with heavy timbers showing in the walls and low ceiling. There was a great fireplace in an enormous chimney, fitted with a crane and hobs, but for practical purposes a small range was provided.

Bates received me placidly.

"Yes; it's an unusual room, sir. Mr. Glenarm copied it from an old kitchen in England. He took quite a pride in it. It's a pleasant place to sit in the evening, sir."

He showed me the way below, where I found that the cellar extended under every part of the house, and was divided into large chambers. The door of one of them was of heavy oak, bound in iron, with a barred opening at the top. A great iron hasp with a heavy padlock and grilled area windows gave further the impression of a cell, and I fear that at this, as at many other things in the curious house, I swore—if I did not laugh—thinking of the money my grandfather had expended in realizing his whims.

The room was used, I noted with pleasure, as a depository for potatoes.

In another of these rooms I found a curious collection of lanterns of every conceivable description, grouped on shelves; and next door to this apartment was another store-room filled with brass candlesticks of many odd designs.

I returned to the main floor and sought the comforts of the library, where I smoked a pipe over a very tedious chapter in an exceedingly dull book on "Norman Revivals and Influences." Then I went out, assuring myself that I should get steadily to work in a day or two.

Bates was soberly chopping wood at a rough pile of timber at the rear of the house. His industry had already impressed me. He had the quiet ways of an ideal serving man.

"Well, Bates, you don't intend to let me freeze to death, do you? There must be enough wood in the pile there to last all winter."

"Yes, sir; I am just cutting a little more of the hickory, sir. Mr. Glenarm always preferred it to beech or maple."

I turned toward the unfinished tower in the meadow, from which a windmill pumped water to the house. The iron frame was not wholly covered with stone, but material for the remainder of the work lay scattered at the base.

I went on through the wood to the lake and inspected the boat house; then I followed the pebbly shore to the stone wall where it marked the line of the school-grounds. The wall, I observed, was of the same solid character here as along the road. I tramped beside it, reflecting that my grandfather's estate, in the heart of the Republic, would some day give the lie to foreign complaints that we have no ruins in America.

The buildings of St. Agatha's were well hidden by the intervening wood, and I climbed upon the wall at the iron gate for an ampler view. The pillars at either side of the gate were of huge dimensions and were higher than I could reach. The little Gothic church near at hand was built of stone similar to that used in Glenarm house. As I surveyed the scene a number of young women appeared, and, forming in twos and fours, walked back and forth before the chapel. A sister clad in a brown habit lingered near or walked first with one and then another group of students. It was all very pretty and interesting and not at all the ugly school for paupers I had expected to find. The students were not the charity children I had carelessly pictured; they were not so young, for one thing, and they seemed to be appraised decently enough.

I smiled to find myself adjusting my scarf and straightening my collar, as I believed my neighbors for the first time.

As I sat thus on the wall I heard the sound of angry voices back of me on the Glenarm side, and a crash of underbrush marked a flight and pursuit. I crouched down on the wall and waited. In a moment a man plunged through the wood and stumbled over a low hanging vine and fell, not 20 feet away from me. To my great surprise it was Morgan, my acquaintance of the morning. He rose, cursed his ill luck and, hugging the wall close, ran toward the lake. Instantly the pursuer broke into view. It was Bates, evidently much excited and with an ugly cut across his forehead. He carried a heavy club, and, after listening for a moment for sounds of the enemy, he hurried after the caretaker.

It was not my row, though I must say it awakened my curiosity. I straightened myself out, threw my legs over the school side of the wall and lighted a cigar, feeling cheered by the opportunity the stone barricade offered for observing the world.

As I looked off toward the little church I found two other actors appearing on the scene. A girl stood in a little opening of the wood, talking to a man. Her hands were thrust into the pockets of her covert coat; she wore a red tam-o'-shanter, that made a bright bit of color in the wood. They were not more than a dozen yards away, but a wild growth of young maples lay between us. Their profiles were toward me, and the tones of the girl's voice reached me clearly as she addressed her companion. He wore a clergyman's high waistcoat, and I assumed that he was the chaplain whom Bates had mentioned. I am not by nature an eavesdropper, but the girl was clearly making a plea of some kind, and the chaplain's stalwart figure awoke in me an antagonism that held me to the wall.

"If he comes here I shall go away, so you may as well understand it and tell him. I shan't see him under any circumstances, and I'm not going to Florida or California or anywhere else on a private car, no matter who chaperones it."

"Certainly not, unless you want to—certainly not," said the chaplain. "You understand that I'm only giving you his message. He thought it best—"

"Not to write to me or to Sister Theresa!" broke in the girl contemptuously. "What a clever person he is!"

"And how clever I am!" said the chaplain, laughing. "Well, at any rate, I thank you for giving me the opportunity to present his message."

She smiled, nodded and turned swiftly toward the school. The chaplain looked, after her for a few moments, then walked soberly away toward the lake. He was a young fellow, clean-shaven and dark, and with a pair of shoulders that gave me a twinge of envy. I could not guess how great a factor that vigorous figure was to be in my own affairs. As I swung down from the wall and walked toward Glenarm House, my thoughts were not with the athletic chaplain, but with the girl, whose youth was, I reflected, marked by her short skirt, the unconcern with which her hands were thrust into the pockets of her coat, and the irresponsible tilt of the tam-o'-shanter. There is something jaunty, a suggestion of spirit and independence, in a tam-o'-shanter, particularly a red one. If the red tam-o'-shanter expressed, so to speak, the key-note of St. Agatha's, the proximity of the school was not so bad a thing after all.

In a high good-humor and with a sharp appetite I went in to luncheon.

WORSER EVERY YEAR

Plenty of Janesville Readers Have the Same Experience.

Don't neglect an aching back. It will get worse every year. Backache is really kidney ache. To cure the back you must cure the kidneys.

If you don't, other kidney ills follow.

Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease.

A Janesville citizen tells you how—the cure is easy.

A Janesville citizen tell us how—Thomas Burgess, millwright of 15 Park Ave., Janesville, Wis., makes the following statement concerning Doan's Kidney Pills:

"I had a pain in my back for nearly ten years. A dull ache and done-out feeling often completely laid me up. It was very bad at night, and I have awakened from a sound sleep feeling as if a ton weight was lying on my back, and for a few moments I would be afraid to move for fear of sharp shooting pains which usually struck me at such times and went to the very quick. I had to use my hands and arms to turn over in bed; my back was weak. The urine was in trouble at night as I gave me trouble at night as I had to get up a number of times to pass it. There was considerable discoloration, and the secretions were discolored. I had used a number of remedies at different times without apparent benefit. I at last decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the Peoples' Drug Company, and soon after I began to use them I began to improve. In a few days the backache and pains less than the average drinker and costs less than the average drinker will spend in a day. In using Orinine I am absolutely no publicity.

The remedy is sold by leading druggists in every city and town or it can be sent by mail. If a cure is not effected your money is refunded.

CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS.

Orinine Treatment is to be Used at Home Without Publicity, or Loss of Time from Business.

Thousands of persons who really want to quit the use of whiskey or beer, realize that they cannot do so without medical help, yet they cannot afford the time or perhaps the money to go to a sanitarium. Happily a new cure for drunkenness has been discovered which is to be taken at home and costs less than the average drinker will spend in a day. In using Orinine I am absolutely no publicity.

DENMARK.

A four-year-old son of Mr. Rasmussen, a ropemaker at Skive, fell off from a railway train some distance east of Viborg, the door of the car flying open while the train was running. A young man resolutely jumped off to look after the child; and the other passengers gave the usual signal of distress, which soon brought the train to a standstill. It was soon found that neither the child nor the young man had sustained any serious injury.

SWEDEN.

The Swedish riksdag was formally opened Jan. 16, with a speech from the throne delivered by Crown Prince Gustav in his capacity as regent. After a reference to the "gratifying change for the better" in the condition of his father, King Oscar, and the good relations existing between Sweden and the foreign powers, the crown prince discussed the domestic affairs of the kingdom. The principal legislation fore-shadowed in the speech was a comprehensive electoral reform measure, introducing universal suffrage and limiting the election of members of the house to a period of six years. Municipal franchises also were extended so as to include wider sections of the community. Other bills to be introduced provide for the establishment of a naval station on the island of Lindingo, the establishment of a free port and warehouses at some point not yet announced and the utilization of the hydraulic power of the waterfalls of Sweden. The estimates for 1908, which were introduced, balance at about $50,250,000. Among the expenditures about $20,000,000, or two-fifths of the revenue, are assigned to the army and navy. The budget for 1907 balances at about $48,000,000.

Dr. Philippe Tisse, a prominent French physician, writes in La Petite Girond, Bordeaux, France: "The truth lies in Swedish gymnastics. It causes movements of expansion which have a favorable influence upon the activity of the diaphragm, and thereby upon the expansion of the chest and the straightening of the backbone. It was convinced of this when my government sent me upon a scientific mission to Sweden. The congress at Muns, where forty-one nations were represented, endorsed the Swedish method exclusively. In France it has finally been realized that the aerobic method must be abandoned. But a hybrid, so called 'selective' method has been proposed, and into this some Swedish principles have been incorporated. In this case, too, I shout: 'Be careful!' In France, as everywhere else, the Swedish method ought to be applied in all its purity."

Varner Ryden, a Social Democrat, has been elected to the riksdag from Malmö, giving the Social Democrats a solid delegation from that city. The result of the recent election was due rather to apathy on the part of the conservative elements than to the real strength of the Radicals. Most of the great dailies of the country make comments on this Social Democratic victory.

The political situation in Malmö is strong argument in favor of proportional representation. Such an arrangement would have given the Conservatives of Malmö one or two of the four seats in the riksdag.

The inhabitants of the island of Gotland are asking for a free harbor at Visby, their strongest argument being that Visby is the only seaport in eastern Sweden which is free from ice during the coldest season of the year. In this connection it should also be mentioned that many a modern Gotlander is still dreaming of future greatness for Visby, which was once the headquarters of the powerful Hanseatic League.

The fishermen along the south coast of Skane are having very poor luck. Codfish is practically the only fish that they can obtain this winter. At the same time the sea is getting more and more numerous, and many fishermen look upon this animal as the cause of the scarcity of fish. Seals are killed in great numbers, but that only seems to multiply them.

Göteborg and Malmö were supposed to be the only cities that would compete for the great free harbor which the government is going to establish somewhere in southern Sweden. Now it appears that Helsingborg, which is located between the former, is going to enter the rank of competitors, and it is said to be more favorably located than either of the other two.

Some curious local statistics. The city of Malmö was visited by 923 foreign traveling merchants in 1906, and they paid a tax aggregating $25,000. During the same year 10,033 rats were killed at a public expense of $425. Foreigners gave 295 public entertainments, for which they paid a tax of $120.

An acetylene gas generator at the factory of C. P. Norberg, Solvesborg, exploded while two men were engaged in charging it. The shock was so violent that some of the walls of the building were wrecked, and the men were badly burned.

Count Hans Wachtmeister died at Engelholm, aged 70 years.

In the commune of Fars, Skane, there are several farms which are partly or wholly going to waste, because nobody wants to use them. For some reason the owners cannot or do not care to run them, and those who might buy or rent them will either go to the cities or to America.

The military authorities of Sweden frankly admit that it seems almost impossible to secure enough men of the right kind for the army, and they recommend higher pay as a partial remedy.

Stockholm has 20 automatic restaurants, and five new ones are being furnished. Only one has been forced out of business by lack of customers.

It is said that many Norwegians living along the Swedish frontier are depositing money in Swedish banks in order to reduce their taxes.

The petitions asking the government for the granting of female suffrage have been signed by 140,000 women.

The sugar factories of Sweden consumed 230,000 tons of sugar beets in December.

There are a few cows in Sweden that give as much as 500 pounds of butter in one year.

The profits of the government bank of Sweden were almost two million dollars for the year 1906.

The leading porcelain factories of Sweden have raised the prices of their products 2 1/2 per cent.

A number of prominent farmers of Örebro have organized themselves into an employers' union.

Rev. P. P. Waldenström has gone to China, and he will not return to Sweden until some time next summer.

The city of Stockholm had to pay over $25,000 to get rid of the snow which fell during the night following Jan. 2.

Desertions from the navy are numerous. In most cases the deserters state that they get tired of the service and want to be free.

The city council of Karlskrona, by a vote of 21 to 10, voted down a motion by Baron E. Palmstierna to petition the King for a change of the tax laws.

A society has been organized in Kristianstad for the purpose of procuring homes for poor workmen so as to prevent them from leaving the country.

There is a bounty of five cents on the head of every crow in Skane, and the gunning has been so energetic that this bird is becoming scarce in southern Sweden.

The Treleborg sugar refining company has donated $270 to the local school children's outing colony, to be applied on the proposed "colony building" at Kämpinge forest.

The official paper of the Swedish Teachers' association has published expressions of gratitude because the wages of the teachers was raised last year, the raise amounting to millions of Kronor.

Bishop Bergquist of Lulea is strongly in favor of establishing a normal school for men in Norrland. He is also anxious to have school houses built in the Lapp settlements where only ambulatory schools have been used in the past.

A flour mill in Malmö recently received 4,000 tons of wheat from India. The "sifters and organists" of the churches of Sweden are going to have a national convention in Stockholm August next.

The Svappavara mining company has deposited enough money in a Stockholm bank for building a railroad from Kiruna to Svappavara as well as for purchasing rolling stock for the same. Work will begin on the new road at an early date.

Some Danish farmers and manufacturers inspected the Roslag power house, near Söderberg, for which peat is used as fuel, and they were so well pleased with the plant that they resolved to build a similar one near a bog in the neighborhood of Barhus.

Those farmers who raised many hogs last year were in great luck, as much as 9 and 10 cents a pound being paid for live hogs. This enormous price made it easy to sell an eight-week old pig for $5 or even more, which would make from twenty to twenty-five cents a pound.

The King's cabinet in the parsonage at Åhus, where Charles XI saved his life during a siege of the Danes, has been turned over to the national government, and the keeper of the old landmark has been authorized to charge a reasonable fee of admission from visitors.

NORWAY.

A man in Tryls caught two foxes at the same time in the same trap. When he came to look after his trap he found one fox held by a front leg and another held by a hind leg.

Hans Adler, of the court theater of Stuttgart, and Dr. Piper fought a duel last fall. Neither of the gentlemen was hurt, but still both of them have to stay in jail for two months. A lady was the cause of the trouble.

New "Novent" Petticoat

elegance of perfect-fitting gowns, whether simple or elaborate, will fail to look into the merits of the "Novent."

What the best French corset is to the waist, the "Novent" is to the skirt—the very acme of grace and symmetry. Made with light-weight jersey fabric, top and elastic waistband, it entirely does away with disfiguring fullness of ordinary petticoats. The "Novent" gives the smooth waist line and slender hip effect. Both dress-makers and dress wearers are wondering why somebody did not modernize the petticoat before.

With lustrous Satine flounce, $1.50; rustling Taffeta flounce, $2.50; black Taffeta silk flounce, $5.00. Other prices above and between.

THE most pronounced innovation in the world of fashion this season is the "Novent" petticoat. No woman who appreciates the
